XXXIII National Conference of Labour Economics
Marche Polytechnic University
Ancona (AN), 20-21 September 2018

Call for papers

The Faculty of Economics “Giorgio Fuà” and the Department of Economics and Social Sciences of the Marche Polytechnic University are pleased to invite you to attend the 33rd annual Conference of the Italian Association of Labour Economists to be held in Ancona (AN), on the 20th-21st September 2018.

The programme includes invited lectures and parallel sessions. The conference provides an opportunity to analyse and discuss issues related to the functioning of the labour market as well as to develop research collaborations.

Theme: Population ageing, fertility and family policies

The theme of the AIEL 2018 plenary sessions is the analysis of population ageing and of the role of families in fertility decisions, labour market participation, and children's education. Key topics raised in the economic literature on labour force ageing include, among others, the need to maintain sustainable welfare systems, the employability of older workers, and their continuous skills update. Economic research also highlighted that the consequences of unfavourable demographic conditions on the labour market can be partially overcome by the increase in the productivity of the youngest. Family policies affect fertility rates, children human capital accumulation, and decisions related to the elderly care. Accordingly, theoretical and empirical analyses of the role played by families and public institutions on the demographic evolution of the labour force and on the development of capabilities among the youngest is a crucial issue to design policy interventions effective in rising to the challenge of population ageing and low fertility rates.

Keynote speakers:

- Jan van Ours, Erasmus University Rotterdam: “Work, Health and Happiness of Old People”
